

COST ACTION 18114 ENTAN – European Non-Territorial Autonomy Network

SECOND CALL FOR ‘Short Term Scientific Missions’ (STSM)

Grant Period (01.05.2019 – 30.04.2020)

STSMs have to be finished by March 20, 2020

Final application deadline is December 20, 2019

ENTAN is a recently approved Action from the European Cooperation in Science and Technology (COST) Association. ENTAN is mandated to study how modalities of Non-Territorial Autonomy (NTA) can help resolve or alleviate national and ethnic conflicts in states where national and ethnic communities demand the recognition of their collective rights. ENTAN includes four working groups specifically focused on: NTA legal and political aspects; cultural identities; regional and socio-economic development; and the development of an NTA university course.

Liberal democracies produce vital notions of citizens’ rights, but citizens are often understood as homogenous quantities, leaving little room for the political recognition of difference and pluralism, and, for national minority collective rights. At the same time, in the international arena, the concept of National Self Determination (NSD) is understood to mean the creation or consolidation of nation-states for aggrieved national communities. However, the number of national communities outnumbers the number of nation-states by far, and, in most cases, different ethno-national populations overlap in the same territorial space, making a territorial solution unworkable and destructive. In various parts of the world, these unfulfilled demands have led to bloody and entrenched conflicts. The problem of the representation of scattered minorities is not new, and there have been historically, important attempts to create modalities of NSD that do not require the creation of nation states. Among the most influential are the National Cultural Autonomy (NCA) model developed by the Austrians Otto Bauer and Karl Renner, the latter a former president of Austria. However, while NCA was for a period of time important and influential in Central and Eastern Europe, it had limited influence in Western Europe and other parts of the world. There are, however, many other modalities of NTA that emerge simultaneously in different parts of the world, showing that the problem of minority self-determination is recurrent in many different countries.

The aim of ENTAN is to examine how and in what context, modalities of NTA can improve the value of democratic participation in Europe, by enhancing the collective incorporation of national minorities, improving minority recognition and fostering recognition and reconciliation in areas of conflict.

ENTAN will provide for 4-8 STSM grants under this call.

All STSMs have to be finished by March 20, 2020.

PURPOSE OF AN STSM:

Short Term Scientific Missions (STSM) are institutional visits aimed at supporting individual mobility, fostering collaboration between individuals.

Applications from early career investigators (ECIs) (up to 8 years after their PhD completion) and researchers from inclusiveness target countries (ITC) participating in the COST Action 18114 (Albania, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Cyprus, the Czech Republic, Estonia, Croatia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Moldova, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Poland, Portugal, Romania, Slovakia, Slovenia, and the Republic of Serbia) are strongly encouraged.

Applicants willing to work on specific NTA case studies from a comparative legal and political perspective or from the standpoint of cultural identities or regional development (either in relation to relevant arrangements in one or more states or to NTA institutions of a specific minority) are particularly encouraged to apply. For more information on case study oriented STSMs please contact Balázs Vizi.

FINANCIAL SUPPORT:

Funding rules are described in detail in Section 8 (pp. 35-36) of the COST Vademecum.

COST provides for a fixed grant that contributes to the overall expenses incurred during the STSM. Financial support is limited to cover travel and subsistence expenses and is paid as a grant at the end of the visit (exceptions apply).

The calculation of the financial contribution for each STSM must respect the following criteria:

Researchers from an ITC participating in the COST Action may request an advanced payment of 50% of the approved STSM Grant upon conclusion of the first day of their STSM. Confirmation by the Host Institution is mandatory. The Host Institution ought to send an email both to the Grant Holder and the STSM Coordinator informing that the STSM applicant has officially started the mission on day 1.
