What is ENTAN?

ENTAN – the European Non-Territorial Autonomy Network is a COST Action (CA18114) aimed at examining the concept of non-territorial autonomy (NTA). ENTAN particularly focuses on NTA arrangements for reducing inter-ethnic tensions within a state and on the accommodation of the needs of different communities while preventing calls to separate statehood.

The main objective of the network is to investigate existing NTA mechanisms and policies and to develop new modalities for the accommodation of differences in the context of growing challenges stemming from globalisation, regionalisation and European supra-national integration. ENTAN fosters interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary group work, and provides for the training and empowerment of young researchers, academic conferences and publications, as well as for the dissemination of results to policy makers, civil society organisations and communities.

In the period 2019-2023, ENTAN has aimed at hosting meetings, conferences, and training schools, alongside realising a number of publications and grants. In addition to this, it has created a miscellany of videos and promotional content, all of which are designed to develop a durable and adaptable foundation around the question of non-territorial autonomy, its practices and the frameworks in which they are situated. This body of work has been achieved by a network that has grown into an important collaborative platform which gathers more than 180 researchers from 36 countries and from various disciplines (law, political science, cultural studies, education, sociology, history, economy, language studies, and policy making). Through this collaboration, ENTAN hopes that it has constructed a reliable bedrock for approaching the concept of NTA and establishing a common understanding of various NTA modalities for the protection of minority rights and cultural diversity management across Europe and beyond.

Additionally, ENTAN has made it possible for the contact between experienced scholars and leading experts in the field of minority studies, including on the concept of non-territorial autonomy (NTA) on the one hand, and emerging talents and early career researchers who seek encouragement and supervision on the other hand. Furthermore, through Short-Term Scientific Missions, or STSMs, work group meetings and conference discussions, new collaborative links were established among researchers who have decided to work together and produce joint publications or knowledge exchange across regional or national borders or differences in age, gender, career stages, or disciplines. Moreover, the Action has provided for and maintained a high percentage of involvement of Inclusiveness Target Countries (ITC): 59% of all participating countries are ITC, and their representatives make for 61% of the MC membership, as well as 63% of the leadership positions within the Action. Lastly, ENTAN encourages the involvement of young researchers and innovators (YRIs) who make up 25% of the total Action participants.

Ultimately, in four and a half years (2019-2023), ENTAN has accomplished a variety of goals reflective of its fundamental premise. These achievements are detailed in the remainder of this report, categorised as Events, Publications, Grants, and Dissemination Products. We hope the effort put forth through these ample activities will inspire more valuable research down the line.

We would like to offer our sincerest gratitude to all ENTAN members and to everyone who has been a part of this project. Also, we extend our thanks to COST for its aid and for the highly professional work of its Scientific and Administrative Officers, as well as to the project's Grant Holder Managers, including:

Dr. Michael Pero,
COST Science Officer (2019-2020);

Dr. Giuseppe Lugano,
COST Science Officer (2020-2023);

Ms. Olga Gorczyca,
COST Administrative Officer (2019-2023);

Mr. Demjan Anatoli Golubov,
ENTAN Grant Holder Manager (2019-2022);

Mr. Stefan Noshpal,
ENTAN Grant Holder Manager (2023).

Working Groups

ENTAN, as a whole, gathers and organises a variety of scholars in four distinct groups:

Working Group 1:

Non-Territorial Autonomy: Legal and Political Aspects

This group prioritises interrogating current NTA models and practices. Their primary aim is to find the necessary tools to: 1) produce comparative research; and, 2) analyse and assess the ways in which NTA integrates with given legal and political frameworks. This is done with the goal of procuring the means for minorities to effectively partake in public life and decision-making.

Working Group 2:

Cultural Identities

This group consists of researchers in the fields of cultural studies, identity politics, socio-linguistics, arts, humanities and sociology. They work on inspecting current NTA models, from which they derive their function in conflict resolution and diversity-management.

Working Group 3:

Regional and Socio-economic Development: Incentives and Resources

This group considers the self-governing structures of ethno-cultural groups on a socio-economic level. Meaning, that they investigate their economic incentives and resources thoroughly, with the aim of relating those incentives and resources to the structures' success in building inclusive democracies, social balance, and stable and prosperous societies.

Working Group 4:

A University Course in Non-Territorial Autonomy

This group, finally, gathers and synthesises the research produced by the previous three groups, with the intention of creating an NTA bibliography and useful teaching materials. The work done here is then used for the design and implementation of NTA in a university framework.
